The Day Ahead: Markets Reopen But Holiday Vibes Remain

Bond markets are fully open again today after 2 and a half days off for Christmas. While things could be a bit busier than earlier this week, volume and liquidity will remain light, and trading momentum can arrive and depart for no good reason. Technically, there's a 7yr Treasury auction on the calendar, and it's worth noting that there was some movement after Tuesday's 5yr Treasury auction.

The following is a repeat:

I won't be writing very much this week, but rest assured, I will be here and I will continue monitoring markets like a hawk and sending out alerts as needed. Even so, you should never rely solely on my written alerts. I highly recommend you set up automated alerts HERE and refine them over time to suit your individual needs. This way, if I'm struck by lightning or hit by a meteor, you'll still be protected until the MBS Live team can fire up one of my clones we have in cold storage.

Here are a few links that provide the gist of late December trading:

Traders are people too
Illiquidity
Stick a fork in 2019
Sometimes Month-End Comes Early

And because I always like to put a chart in the morning commentary, here's yet another look at the rather epic consolidation that has been intact for nearly half a year now. Realistically, there's not a whole lot of riveting bond market analysis to be done until this consolidation is resolved (Jan or Feb 2020, most likely).
