ALERT: Reprice Risk Now Back in Full Effect

All of the post-QE4 announcement gains are gone. 2.5 UMBS are 10 ticks (.31 lower) lower on the day at 100-24 (100.75). This isn't as low as they've been today, but close enough. 10yr yields are into new highs for the day and now down only 3bps at .847%. Stocks haven't held their post-QE4 gains, and once again, the market is shunning Fed intervention.

To whatever extent negative reprices were possible earlier today, they're a risk again now. If your lender never repriced for the worse (or if they recently repriced for the better), those risks are even higher.
