Repeat Performance for Mortgage Apps

There was a little bit of Groundhog Day in last week's results from the Mortgage Bankers Association's (MBA's) Weekly Mortgage Application Survey. The report this morning for the week ended March 18 showed the overall performance as measured by MBA's Market Composite Index, a measure of loan application volume, exactly duplicated that during the week ended March 11. Both weeks the index declined 3.3 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis and 3 percent on a non-adjusted basis from their respective prior index numbers.

The Refinance Index which has declined by 6 percent the earlier week did slightly better, falling only 5 percent. The refinance share of all applications shrunk from 55.0 percent to 53.9 percent as rates remained under pressure compared to recent lows.

Both the seasonally adjusted and non-adjusted Purchase Indices lost 1.0 percent after making slight gains a week earlier. The non-adjusted Purchase Index was 25 percent higher than during the same week in 2015 after increasing 33 percent year-over-year a week earlier.

Average contract interest rates eased slightly lower during the week and effective rates were down as well. The average contract interest rate for 30-year fixed-rate mortgages (FRM) with conforming loan balances ($417,000 or less) decreased to 3.93 percent from 3.94 percent. Points decreased to 0.35 from 0.42.
