Mortgage Applications Resume Downtrend

Despite persistently low rates, consumers are not feeling too motivated to apply for home loans. The Mortgage Bankers Association said mortgage applications during the week ended August 12 fell for the fourth time in the last five weeks.

MBA's Market Composite Index, a measure of loan application volume, was 4.0 percent below its level a week earlier on a seasonally adjusted basis and 5 percent unadjusted. Applications for both purchasing and refinancing were about equally responsible for the decline with the refinance index also decreasing 4.0 percent from a week earlier and the seasonally adjusted Purchase Index down 4.0 percent to its lowest level since February 2016. The unadjusted Purchase Index dropped by 5.0 percent from a week earlier but remained 10 percent higher than during the same week in 2015.

The refinancing share of mortgage applications ticked up to 62.6 percent from 62.4 percent a week earlier. The portion of applications that were for FHA loans fell to 9.6 percent from 10.0 percent while VA applications rose by 0.2 points to 13.2 percent. USDA applications were unchanged at 0.6 percent.

Both contract and effective interest rates were down for all mortgage product types tracked by MBA. The average contract interest rate for 30-year fixed rate mortgages (FRM) with conforming loan balances ($417,000 or less) eased back by 1 basis point to 3.64. Points also decreased, from 0.34 to 0.31.

The average contract interest rate for 30-year FRM with jumbo loan balances (greater than $417,000) declined from 3.64 percent with 0.31 point during the week ended August 5 to 3.60 percent with 0.28 point.

Thirty-year FRM by the FHA had an average rate of 3.49 percent, down from 3.52 percent a week earlier. Average points were 0.28 compared to 0.33.

There was a 3 basis point dip in the average rate for 15-year FRM bring it to 2.90 percent. Points decreased to 0.32 from 0.34.
